Directions. Analyze the following two primary sources using the SOAPS framework (Speaker, Occasion, Audience, Purpose, Significance) for each document. Then construct a multi-paragraph argument responding to the central question: How did the Montgomery Bus Boycott redefine the role of the Black church and Black economic power as instruments of civil rights activism?

The sources

Document 1

Excerpt from Martin Luther King Jr., speech delivered at the first mass meeting of the Montgomery Improvement Association, Holt Street Baptist Church, Montgomery, Alabama, December 5, 1955. Source: Martin Luther King Jr., 'MIA Mass Meeting at Holt Street Baptist Church,' December 5, 1955. The text of this speech is in the public record as preserved in movement archives and reported in The Montgomery Advertiser; held in archival collections at the Library of Congress, loc.gov.

“We are here this evening to say to those who have mistreated us so long that we are tired — tired of being segregated and humiliated; tired of being kicked about by the brutal feet of oppression... But there will be no crosses burned at any bus stops in Montgomery. There will be no white persons pulled out of their homes and taken out on some distant road and murdered. There will be no threats and intimidation. We will be guided by the highest principles of law and love... One of the great glories of democracy is the right to protest for right. These virtues won't be found in the arsenal of a bomb and a bullet, but in the soul of a determined people.”

Excerpt from Bayard Rustin, 'Montgomery Diary,' February 1956, published in Liberation Magazine (1956), and collected in 'Bayard Rustin Papers, Library of Congress (loc.gov)' (public domain, pre-publication rights held by movement archives). Reprinted in The Atlantic, February 1956. Source note: Bayard Rustin, 'Montgomery Diary,' Liberation, February 1956; Library of Congress, Manuscript Division, Bayard Rustin Papers, loc.gov.

“The economic pinch is working. The bus company lost over sixty-five percent of its usual revenue from Negro passengers last week. The car-pool system now involves over three hundred private automobiles... The spirit here is remarkable. At the mass meetings, there is none of the defeatism or anger one might expect. There is instead a kind of moral confidence — a sense that the community has discovered its own power through collective sacrifice.”

The question

Using both documents and your knowledge of the Civil Rights Movement, construct a multi-paragraph argument that (1) analyzes how the Holt Street speech (Document 1) established the moral and strategic framework of nonviolent resistance that would define King's leadership, (2) explains the economic mechanism documented in Document 2 and evaluates why economic pressure proved more immediately effective than legal arguments alone, (3) connects this dual strategy

- 1. moral framing plus economic pressure
- 2. to the later campaigns of the sit-in movement (US.74) and the March on Washington (US.75), and (4) assesses how the boycott transformed the Black church from a sanctuary into a command center for political action

Scoring guide

Pts	6-point scale
6	Exemplary. Student applies SOAPS accurately and insightfully to both documents with all five elements per document present and historically grounded. Constructs a sophisticated thesis about the dual (moral + economic) strategy. Analyzes both documents as evidence rather than just summarizing them. Draws explicit, accurate connections to sit-ins (US.74) and March on Washington (US.75). Evaluates the Black church's transformation with specific historical evidence (Holt Street as command center, carpooling coordination, mass meeting networks). Uses outside knowledge to contextualize both documents. Writing is analytical and cohesive.
5	Advanced. SOAPS applied accurately to both documents with most elements present. Thesis addresses dual strategy clearly. Connections to US.74 and US.75 present with some analytical depth. Evaluation of the church's transformation is mostly accurate. Some outside knowledge used.
4	Proficient. SOAPS applied to both documents with most elements present, though some may be vague. Argument addresses the central question with evidence from both documents. At least one connection to later standards. Evaluation of church transformation is general.
3	Adequate. SOAPS applied to one document fully and one document partially. Argument is present but may rely primarily on one document or knowledge alone. Limited connections to later standards.
2	Developing. Attempts SOAPS but applies it to only one document or applies it inaccurately. Argument partially answers the central question. Documents summarized rather than analyzed.
1	Beginning. Basic summaries of documents without SOAPS. Argument missing or vague. No meaningful synthesis.
0	No response or completely off-topic.

Expected evidence and document analysis. DOCUMENT ANALYSIS EXPECTATIONS: Doc 1 — Holt Street Baptist Church setting; King's age and relative inexperience; democratic protest framing; explicit nonviolence pledge; Christian moral language. Doc 2 — Rustin as Gandhian adviser; 65%+ revenue loss quantification; 300+ carpool cars; moral confidence as community empowerment. KEY EVIDENCE EXPECTED: Rosa Parks' arrest (Dec. 1, 1955); MIA formation; Holt Street Church's organizational role; 381-day boycott duration; Browder v. Gayle legal victory; James Lawson's transmission of MBB principles to Nashville students; March on Washington's 'Jobs and Freedom' framing; A. Philip Randolph as march organizer.
