Directions. Analyze the following two primary sources using the HIPP framework (Historical context, Intended audience, Purpose, Point of view) for each document. Then construct a multi-paragraph argument responding to the central question: How did the Voting Rights Act of 1965 address the structural barriers to Black political participation that the Civil Rights Act of 1964 had left intact, and what does the contrast between these two documents reveal about the relationship between legal rights and structural power?

“SEC. 2. No voting qualification or prerequisite to voting, or standard, practice, or procedure shall be imposed or applied by any State or political subdivision to deny or abridge the right of any citizen of the United States to vote on account of race or color... SEC. 4(a). [States and counties covered under the formula — those with a history of low voter registration and usage of tests — must suspend any literacy test or similar device used as a prerequisite for voting]... SEC. 5. Whenever a State or political subdivision [covered by the Act] shall enact or seek to administer any voting qualification or prerequisite to voting, or standard, practice, or procedure with respect to voting different from that in force or effect on November 1, 1964, such State or subdivision shall submit any such proposed change... to the Attorney General of the United States or... to the United States District Court for the District of Columbia for a declaratory judgment that such change neither has the purpose nor will have the effect of denying or abridging the right to vote on account of race or color.”

The question

Using both documents and your knowledge of the Civil Rights Movement, construct a multi-paragraph argument that (1) identifies the specific enforcement mechanisms in Document 1 and explains why they were insufficient to eliminate Black voter disenfranchisement in practice, (2) analyzes the three key innovations in Document 2

1. the Section 2 general prohibition, Section 4's literacy test suspension, and Section 5's preclearance requirement
2. and explains how each addressed a specific structural barrier that Document 1 left intact, (3) connects the passage of the VRA to the specific campaigns and events between 1964 and 1965 (including the Selma to Montgomery marches and Bloody Sunday) that created the political urgency for stronger legislation, and (4) evaluates whether the VRA of 1965 represented a fundamental shift in the federal-state relationship regarding voting rights

Scoring guide

Pts	6-point scale
6	Exemplary. Student applies HIPP accurately and insightfully to both documents, identifying historical context, audience, purpose, and point of view with specific historical grounding for each. Constructs a sophisticated thesis about the structural shift from CRA to VRA. Accurately analyzes the specific enforcement weaknesses of Document 1 (individual litigation, federal elections only, no literacy test ban). Accurately analyzes all three Section innovations in Document 2 (Sec. 2 breadth, Sec. 4 literacy tests, Sec. 5 preclearance) with clear explanation of how each addressed a specific gap. Connects VRA passage specifically to Selma and Bloody Sunday with accurate details. Evaluates the federalism implications with analytical depth. Uses outside knowledge throughout. Writing is analytically sophisticated and cohesive.
5	Advanced. HIPP applied accurately to both documents. Thesis addresses structural shift. Analyzes Document 1's weaknesses with specificity. Analyzes at least two of three Section innovations in Document 2 accurately. Connects VRA to Selma. Evaluates federalism implications with some depth.
4	Proficient. HIPP applied to both documents with most elements present. Argument addresses the central question. Identifies Document 1's weaknesses generally. Identifies at least one Section innovation in Document 2. Selma connection made. Federalism evaluation present but general.
3	Adequate. HIPP applied to one document fully. Argument present but reliant on general knowledge rather than document-specific analysis. Selma connection may be absent or very brief.
2	Developing. HIPP attempted for one document with partial accuracy. Argument partially addresses the central question. Documents are summarized rather than analyzed.
1	Beginning. Basic summaries. No meaningful HIPP. Argument absent or vague.
0	No response or completely off-topic.

Expected evidence and document analysis. DOCUMENT ANALYSIS EXPECTATIONS: Doc 1 — 1964 filibuster limits; individual litigation model; federal elections only; no literacy test ban. Doc 2 — Bloody Sunday catalyst; LBJ's 'We Shall Overcome'; preclearance as federalism revolution; covered jurisdictions (7 Southern states); literacy test suspension as structural fix. KEY EVIDENCE EXPECTED: Selma to Montgomery marches; Bloody Sunday (March 7, 1965); Edmund Pettus Bridge; ABC television broadcast of troopers' attack; LBJ's 'We Shall Overcome' address (March 15, 1965); Section 5 preclearance as 10th Amendment challenge; covered jurisdiction formula; VRA passage August 6, 1965; Black voter registration increase in covered states post-1965.
